

ALZ Talks: WHEN DOWN SYNDROME AND ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE INTERSECT

A free webinar presented by the Alzheimer's Association

As they age, people with Down syndrome have an increased risk of developing a type of dementia that's either the same as or very similar to Alzheimer's disease. This session explores how to spot early changes in memory and behavior and shares the latest strategies for diagnosis, treatment and caregiving. Designed for families, caregivers and professionals, the talk offers practical insights and resources to help the Down syndrome community navigate Alzheimer's disease.
