Cannabis Can Affect a Young Person’s Brain

- The brains of young people do not fully develop until they reach their mid-20s. Regular cannabis use during the early years of life can lead to harmful physical changes in the brain.¹
- Research shows that when youth use cannabis their memory, learning, and attention are harmed. Some studies suggest a permanent impact as well.²

Other Negative Effects of Cannabis on Youth

- Driving under the influence of cannabis increases the risk of getting into a car crash. Cannabis can negatively affect the skills that are needed to drive safely, including reaction time, coordination, and concentration.³,⁴
- The harmful effects of cannabis on a young person’s brain may impact their educational and professional goals and how successful they are in life.⁵ Research shows that youth who start using before 18 or who use cannabis regularly may be at higher risk for:
  - Skipping classes⁶
  - Getting lower grades⁷
  - Dropping out of school⁸
  - Unemployment or having less fulfilling jobs later in life⁸,⁹
- Mental health problems may include:
  - Anxiety, depression, suicide, and schizophrenia¹⁰,¹¹,¹²,¹³
  - Cannabis dependence and a higher risk for using or abusing other substances and illegal drugs¹⁴
- Like tobacco, smoking cannabis is harmful to the lungs. The smoke from cannabis has many of the same toxins and chemicals found in tobacco smoke, and when inhaled can increase the risk of developing lung problems.¹⁵,¹⁶

Young People and Cannabis Use

- In 2016, most high school students in California reported they were not using cannabis. Only about 15 percent (less than 1 in 5) reported using cannabis in the past 30 days.¹⁷

Parents and mentors can have an impact on whether or not youth use cannabis (marijuana, weed, pot, etc.). Pre-teens, teens and youth in their early 20s often seek out new experiences and engage in risky behaviors, such as using cannabis. You can help prevent underage use by starting the conversation about cannabis with youth in your life, and make sure they are aware of potential consequences. Here are some important facts you should know about cannabis and some tips for talking to youth.
• However, most youth do not believe cannabis is harmful. Eight out of 10 youth in California, aged 12-17, reported believing using cannabis once a month was not risky.18

Recognizing if a Youth is Using Cannabis10
